UC CalFresh in Action!

2018 USDA Farm to School to School Grantees Announced

$5.2 Million in Grants Will Support Local Food in Child Nutrition Programs in 43 States, D.C., and Guam

The Office of Community Food Systems (OCFS) congratulates all of the 2018 Farm to School Grant recipients! USDA's Farm to School Grants fund school districts, State and local agencies, Indian tribal organizations, agricultural producers, and non-profit organizations in their efforts to increase local foods served through child nutrition programs, teach children about food and agriculture through garden and classroom education, and develop schools' and farmers' capacities to participate in farm to school.

For the 2018 - 2019 school year, 73 grants will serve more than 6,006 schools and 2.8 million students, nearly 66 percent of whom are eligible for free or reduced-price meals. California school districts that will have funded projects include Colusa, Bakersfield and Humboldt.

The full list and more information about the grant can be read here.

Germ Busters, UCCE Kings County

UC CalFresh Nutrition Education Program- Kings County has collaborated with Hanford Parks and Recreation Summer Camp. UC CalFresh provided Jr. Recs (teen leaders) with an overview on food safety and the importance of washing their hands. They learned they should wash their hands before and/or after certain activities; for example, washing them before cooking and after playing with their pets. To reinforce the lesson each Jr. Rec was asked to rub "germ" lotion into their hands then tasked with properly washing their hands and checking to see how clean their hands were by putting their hands under a black light. The teen leaders soon realized that they can improve their hand washing techniques. Teen Leaders will use what they learned to teach summer camp children the importance of washing their hands.

Using the curriculum "Cooking Up Healthy Choices", UC CalFresh Kings County will be providing Jr. Rec's with a nutrition education lesson each week during the summer. We look forward to working with teen leaders to educate them on important nutrition practices, so they can spread healthy messages among their family, friends, and fellow campers.

Articles & Research

SNAP participants do not meet many healthful diet goals

A study in JAMA Network Open showed that participants of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program had less improvement on the American Heart Association's 2020 Strategic Impact Goals for diet, compared with income-eligible individuals who did not participate in SNAP and higher-income individuals. Researchers analyzed data on 38,696 participants aged at least 20 from the National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey from 1999 to 2014 and also found that SNAP participants consumed more sugar-sweetened drinks than the other groups

The full article can be read here.

2018 State Indicator Report on Fruits and Vegetables

The following information was previously shared in the 6/20/18 Champions for Change Newsletter from LA County.

The Centers for Disease Control just released the 2018 State Indicator Report on Fruits and Vegetables, a report which highlights approaches to increase the purchase, supply, and demand of fruits and vegetables in states and communities across the United States. Key findings include—

- 10 states adopted a policy on food service guidelines that ensures that healthy foods, including fruits and vegetables, are sold or served on state-owned or state-controlled property.
- 47 states adopted a farm to school or farm to early care and education policy that can increase access to fruits and vegetables.
- 32 states have active state-level food policy councils—cross-sector organizations that work to improve the food system.

Eating a diet rich in fruits and vegetables can help reduce the risk of many leading causes of illness and death, such as cardiovascular disease, type 2 diabetes, some cancers, and obesity. Despite these benefits, only 1 in 10 US adults eat the recommended amount of fruits or vegetables each day. Public health practitioners and decision-makers can use this report to assess how their states are doing and identify strategies they can put in place to improve access to fruits and vegetables in their communities.

Study looks at prevalence of obesity among US youths

Researchers found that 17.8% and 5.8% of children and teens ages 2 to 19 in the US were obese and severely obese, respectively, between 2013 and 2016. The findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association also showed that severe obesity was significantly more common among youths in nonmetropolitan statistical areas, and both obesity and severe obesity were significantly more prevalent among blacks and Hispanics. See the full article here. Please note that access to the full article requires a subscription, which your organization may have, or a fee.

The University of California CalFresh Nutrition Education Program (UC CalFresh) is funded through a joint agreement among the U.S. Department of Agriculture/Food & Nutrition Service (USDA/FNS), the California Department of Social Services (CDSS) CalFresh and Nutrition Branch, and the University of California Cooperative Extension (UCCE). This material was produced by the University of California CalFresh Nutrition Education Program with funding from USDA SNAP, known in California as CalFresh (formerly food stamps). These institutions are equal opportunity providers and employers. CalFresh provides assistance to low-income households and can help buy nutritious foods for better health.
